You'll find an updated buyer's guide to the perfect PC as well as detailed guides to digital cameras and small networks. Other sections offer basic information on CPUs and hard drives. "Therefore, go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit." "He said to me, 'My grace is enough for you, because power is made perfect in weakness.' So I'll gladly spend my time bragging about my weaknesses so that Christ's power can rest on me." "Throw all your anxiety onto him, because he cares about you." "It's impossible to please God without faith because the one who draws near to God must believe that he exists and that he rewards people who try to find him." "He was pierced because of our rebellions and crushed because of our crimes. He bore the punishment that made us whole; by his wounds we are healed." "I've said these things to you so that you will have peace in me. In the world you have distress. But be encouraged! I have conquered the world." "From now on, brothers and sisters, if anything is excellent and if anything is admirable, focus your thoughts on these things: all that is true, all that is holy, all that is just, all that is pure, all that is lovely, and all that is worthy of praise." "God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, so that everyone who believes in him won't perish but will have eternal life." "All have sinned and fall short of God's glory..." "The Lord is my shepherd. I lack nothing. He lets me rest in grassy meadows; he leads me to restful waters; he keeps me alive." "I know the plans I have in mind for you, declares the Lord; they are plans for peace, not disaster, to give you a future filled with hope." "I can endure all these things through the power of the one who gives me strength." "We know that God works all things together for good for the ones who love God, for those who are called according to his purpose." "Trust in the Lord with all your heart; don't rely on your own intelligence." "When God began to create the heavens and the earth—" "I will ask the Father, and he will send another Companion, who will be with you forever." "The wages that sin pays are death, but God's gift is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord." "Don't be anxious about anything; rather, bring up all of your requests to God in your prayers and petitions, along with giving thanks." "Don't be conformed to the patterns of this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your minds so that you can figure out what God's will is—what is good and pleasing and mature." "I'm with you and no one who attacks you will harm you, for I have many people in this city." Venture capitalist Glen Moorehead was intrigued by an inventor's product: a handheld computer that calls up biblical passages. But a patent search turned up another man who'd had the same idea in the same month of the same year. So all three parties joined to create Computer Bible Technologies Inc., in Springfield, Ill. With $1 million in funding, they plan to unveil their $485 gadget next month -- and to sell $36 million worth of this year. -- Leslie Brokaw It doesn't matter whether you believe the Bible to be fact or a fable... University of Chicago Press. Danker also uses more consistent reference citations..." by Henry A. Virkler. Baker Books. From the publisher: "The primary goal of many hermeneutics texts available today is the elucidation of proper principles of biblical interpretation. Hermeneutics, in contrast, translates hermeneutical theory into five practical steps that can be used to interpret all genre of Scripture." I work closely (week to week) with about a dozen different writers every year and part of our process is a VERY in depth character bible for any character that makes a significant appearance in a story. The process works like this: 1. Label the greatest failures and successes in your character's life up to the point in which they enter the story (as they relate to the major issues we all encounter: love, money, family, sex, drugs, art, accomplishments, education, career). 2. Using a narrative approach, describe the events of each and every one of those failures and successes. 3. When you've got 20 pages per character, summarize the major VICTORIES and SCARS of each character on a single page. The product of this work is your bible; your contract with your character that you will write them true to their own life story. Throughout the world of your story, your characters are subconsciously chasing the greatest moments of their past to repeat the glory, and running from their greatest failures to avoid the pain. Great stories arise out of circumstances where a fear has to battle a desire and one has to win at the cost of the other. For example: Samantha's Greatest Failure: Dropped out of school. Narrative description: When Samantha was in the 7th grade her mother was killed in a hit and run car accident. Samantha was the oldest of four children and because her father was passed out drunk, she had to go and identify the mutilated body of her mother. When she returned home, something clicked inside of her and she realized that with her father as incapacitated as he was, she was the new head of the household. She faked her age and immediately got a job at a local restaurant where she went every day after she sent her three younger siblings off to school. For the next two years, she worked her tail off to keep food on the table. Then her father took some pills in a drunken stupor and never woke up. From there she elevated her game to a higher level, finagled her way into a corporate job with a major theme park and took on the full role of caretaker. Her siblings are a great personal joy for her, but every day at work, she secretly worries that her lack of a degree will one day be found out and send her life and their stability tumbling down a steep hillside. Greatest success: Employee of the year. Narrative Description: In her fifth year of working with the theme park she was promoted to a management position, and made responsible for an event that hosted 30,000 guests at the park. She had to manage the entertainment (a prominent young singer), the catering (over 300 staff), and relations with a VERY picky client who wanted everything done perfectly. The success of the event earned the theme park a series of very lucrative contracts for the next three years that generated an additional annual $3 million dollars and earned her the coveted employee of the year award, a job she competed against thousands of others to win. To her it meant that she could actually accomplish anything she set her mind to; that she was worthy, and that regardless of her lack of education, she had a place in this world and could compete with anyone, and take care of her family. Notice that her greatest failure and her greatest success in this area are two sides of the same coin. This is by design. (Imagine 10-20 pages written out this way that highlight both sides of the coin for her as they relate to love, sex, money, family, etc.) Now that you have outlined how important her status has become to her, imagine if her "secret" is threatened by another character with equally powerful fears and desires. How might she behave to protect her secret? As you can imagine, this kind of work makes the eventual writing of the chapters rather easy because the characters have their own agendas that you have carefully constructed. I liken it to raising a child and then pushing them out of the nest. You hope you have raised them well, but ultimately, they will make their own mistakes and be accountable to the consequences as they learn how to live and behave and navigate their world. Spending your time doing this kind of "homework" before writing tends to very powerful interactions between characters, like multiple balls being let loose in a pinball machine. They ricochet off of one another and are difficult to control, which mirrors life.
